

Vice Chancellors Council

As the national apex body for the management profession in India, All India Management Association has played a catalytic role in the evolution of a new management ethos since its inception in 1957. A pioneer in distance management education, AIMA has been at the forefront of development of management education and has been involved in bridging the gap between the industry and academia through its various programmes and initiatives.

With this aim in mind, AIMA has launched the Vice Chancellors Council; as a platform for senior management educationists and corporate thought leaders to come together work together towards the transformation of management education in the nation.

Vision

The vision is to build a world class online and blended Management Education and facilitate Indian universities transition to a world class institution

Mission

The Council, over time, will serve to be an enabler for innovative ideas in online and blended Management Education, and act as a platform for discussion, debate and collaboration. This council will channelise the creative ideas of great minds to bring about qualitative transformation and dispersion of knowledge in online and blended management education.

About the Council

The AIMA Vice Chancellors Council is a platform for Vice Chancellors, Provosts, PR-Chancellors, Directors, Senior Academics and Professionals from Industry to pool their thoughts and suggestions about making management education blended, open and digital.

For this purpose, among the several activities, this council will:

- Act as a policy research centre in online and blended management education
- Discuss and deliberate on policy matters in university management education
- Develop an accreditation system for online and blended management education
- To share best practices of online and blended management education
- Hold periodic meets and a general assembly each year

Membership

AIMA invites academic and administrative heads including Vice Chancellors, Provosts, PR - Chancellors, Directors, Senior Academics and Professionals from Industry to join the Vice Chancellors Council by becoming the member.
